Michael Clancy is a British sculptor and qualified architect, working between London, Barcelona and his studio in Buckinghamshire. His practice bridges architecture and art, combining formal training from the Barcelona Academy of Art with a background in award-winning architectural design. Using materials like Corten steel, his sculptures explore spatial form and structural clarity. Inspired by both classical and modernist influences, each piece is designed to engage with its environment, creating a presence that is bold yet timeless.

All my sculptures are original, limited edition works. What I love about these designs is their spatial richness and inherent scalability - they can be easily adapted to suit a variety of settings and client needs. In addition to the featured pieces, I also offer site-specific commissions and bespoke sculpture design. Have a unique project or space in mind? Get in touch! I'd love to help bring your idea to life.
